NEW YORK SEELIN, SUNDAY, JANUARY MESS

OHIO DEMOCRATIC STATE CONVENTION.

This convention closed its sitting at Columbus, on the hast, after nominating for Supreme Judge, Rufus P. anny; for Beard of Public Works, Dr. Griswoid for sumissioner of Common Schools, H. H. Barney—all the resent incumbents. The convention had quite a stormy me, in connecquence of two sets delegates appearing from incinnati. The following resolutions were passed unaniligion and politics, and of most pernicious and caugerous teadency.

Resolved, That democracy has no secrecy and requires no caths; that while it publicly avows, as a fundamenta principle, freedom of conscience without distinction of religious faith, the political equality of all whom the law recognizes as American citizens, without reference to the needent of birth, it relies for aucress upon open discussions and the inteligence and virtue of the people. We observed the mount of the know Nothing organization so salled, as intelerant in its warfare upon the freedom of edigious belief and the sacred rights of conscience—unitarity exclusive in its requirements of birth and blood, democralizing in its oaths and concealments, and anti-republican and dangerous in its secret convinations and as methods of secret political action.

Resolved, That the democracy of Ohio, relying upon the intelligence and patriotism of the people, declare and publish there as the principles for which they will do battle, and inscribing them upon their banner, thus boldly and definity meet the issues presented now by the sumbined hosts of the enemies of democracy and of the Union and the constitution, pledging themselves that that banner shall remain unfurled so long as there is a constitution and democratic principles to support and defend.

Resoved, That we rejoice in the firm, noble and patrio-

Renoved, That we rejoice in the firm, noble and patrio-estand of the democratic members of Congress of the nited States, in the matter or electing a Speaker of the ouse of Representatives, and trust that they will main in that stand to the last.

Mas. Gaines' Case.—You appear to me to labor under a mistake in regard to the late decision in the Gaines case. The Court below decreed that no will can be proved without producing the paper purporting to be the instrument. The Superior Court reversed that decision, and dectared that a will that is proved to have had existence, and to have been lost or destroyed, may be proved. Now, before such probate can be received, it must be made to appear to the Court below that the will of Daniel Clark had existence, and was lost or destroyed. The Superior Court, therefore, gave no authority to Mrs. Gaines to sue out an ejectment, as you suppose.—Phila. Ledger.

The requirements of American village homes considered and suggested, with designs for such bouses of moderate; cost, by itemy. W. Cleveland, William Backus and Samuel D. Esckus, I vel., 5 vo. lilustrated with 160 designs. Price $2.

[Promthe N. Y. Revening Post.]

The work is professedly intended for that numerous class who cannot afford to build expensively. The design is well carried out. We have here some two dezen cottages and farm houses, of various size, secommodation and style, ranging, in estimated cost, from $509 to $3,000. These humble clevations are, for the most part, simple and graceful; tastfully sort of with secompaniments of shrub and tree, and show how beautiful rarial cottages may and ougst to secome. The floor plans and sections show that the attention given to the internal arangements have been most careful and judicious. To make communication casy betweenthe rooms and yet to ensure privaragements have been most careful and judicious. To make communication casy betweenthe rooms and yet to ensure privaragements have been most careful and judicious. To make communication casy betweenthe rooms and yet to ensure privaragements have been most careful and judicious. To make communication casy betweenthe rooms and yet to ensure privaragements have been been described to the internal architectural publications, and a very judicious one. The book contains many useful remarks and truly practical hints. Any person about to build may read with profit the sections on choice of a lot, on the adoption of a plan, on painting, on our creat timbers and on the application of principles of details.
